

Home Improvement Projects Video Transcript

Are high interest rates keeping you in your current home? It could be a great time to tackle that renovation project you've been dreaming of. Some home improvement projects actually pay for themselves when it's time to sell. According to Remodeling Magazine, the three home improvement projects that give you the most bang for your buck are replacing your garage door, replacing your entry door, and adding manufactured stone veneer to your home's exterior. Check out six more bonus tips in this article on how to increase the value of your home while waiting for interest rates to come down.